

Abstract

A device for viewing entertainment in a private individual setting comprises payment module to deliver a block of time of content from a local or wide area servers and played on a pay per view basis on a display monitor. On payment the server allows access to content. Content is stored on a local server or connected directly to a main server which renews the title list of available entertainment. Connection with an external server allows more content to be made available.

DBS100A